Where Are Your Keys?

Immersion techniques for teachers AND learners.

Workshop Description:

Where Are Your Keys (WAYK) is a collection of practical techniques for immersion designed to support communities of skilled language teachers and learners. With the help of many participants and partners over the years, the WAYK team has been able to distill memorable strategies for creating safe, inclusive, and collaborative learning environments. WAYK was originally designed for sessions with fluent speakers (i.e., Mentor-Apprentice) and community language gatherings, but can be used in a classroom setting as well.

Join us for an introductory WAYK session that will include hands-on lessons (in a demonstration language), examples of curriculum, and fun techniques for teaching and learning. Whether your goal is fluency development, teacher training, curriculum creation, or documentation, participants will walk away with valuable tools that can be used independently or can complement and enhance existing methods.

WORKSHOP FACILITATORS

Evan Gardner

Susanna Ciotti

Evan Gardner grew up in the suburbs of Portland, Oregon, in and around the Molalla and Clackamas Rivers. Evan has worked extensively in education from early childhood to university, and has been teaching languages, including English, Spanish, American Sign Language (ASL), and Chinuk Wawa, for over 25 years. Since 2001, Evan has been facilitating Where Are Your Keys? (WAYK) workshops throughout North America, teaching language and community revitalization techniques to teachers and students, and working with indigenous and endangered languages.

Susanna Ciotti has a background in education, facilitation, and classical studies. Before joining Where Are Your Keys, she was a middle and high school Latin teacher in Brooklyn, NY and was an active member of the local peer-facilitated professional development community. A supporter of the “living Latin” movement, Susanna has participated in many spoken Latin immersion intensives. As part of the WAYK team, she works with learners and teachers of endangered languages to develop lessons and curriculum for their classrooms and community events.
